In life there are lots of moving emotions, for instance, like myself in this life not only could I listen to the Buddhism teaching, also had this great opportunity of meeting Longevityology as well as teacher Lin and teacher Wei.

Giving happiness and taking away pain that is what Longevityology is all about!

Had this great opportunity and in contact with Longevityology, starting from the Buddhist temple, two Buddhist monks named Zhen Jin master and Zhen Shau master strongly recommended, in one of the fortunate incident Zhen Jin master used Longevityology healed my painful knee I have been having for half a year. I am very thankful to Zhen Jin master's benevolent and compassionate heart, therefore I deeply believed the special power of Longevityology and the Buddhist teaching of "the return of good deeds performed" must have a close relationship.

What is benevolent? Benevolent is to give happiness and to take away the pains. In Buddhism it says, first to help the sick and take the pain away, people in general would agree that doing charity/good deeds get most happiness. Illness is the most painful among the eight pains, so in these eight fortunate fields, the morality of healing pain comes first.

Before I came in contact with Longevityology , all these ; not saying anything, strange force could be confusing, using hands to heal illness, one would think it is quite possible there is no truth in it! However, after I have learned Longevityology, try to extend my hands and got the unexpected result, this unexpected result greatly increased my confidence.

Remembered this year the first time participate in the ceremony in the temple, I felt a kind of energy emerging continuously in my hands, then followed the instinct and placed my hands on the neck of the person sitting in front of me. Only a little while, this person turned her head, smiling and said:"Hsin See sister, how did you know I do not feel well today. My throat has been painful for a few days, just now I am feeling a kind of warm energy going in, and feeling easier when I swallow." After she has spoken, my eyes brightened, replied:" I did not know you had a flu for a long time, I just my hands have energy, and followed my instinct and put them on your neck, I did not expect it is able to reduce your pain, wow,
