

“Fool”

Our national hero Datuk Sim Mow Yu passed away peacefully in Malacca. On 8th Feb 2009, I arrived Kuala Lumpur and immediately rushed down to attend the funeral. More than eighty Malacca's longevitology members went with me to pay our final respect. Afterward, we attended a practice session at the Malacca centre and a meeting with longevitology members from Johor. By the time I arrived Batu Pahat; it's already midnight.

Throughout the whole day, the speech Datuk Sim Mow Yu made in the year 1936 kept echoing in my mind.

[“Fool, fool. I’m a fool. You’re also a fool. Pity there are too few fools in the world. May you, I and all those sharing the same vision, remain fools forever; to influence those countless selfish smart elite.”]

This speech deeply shook me. It also shakes off a lot of sad thought. All these years of physical and mental stress; slandering, disappointing.... feelings melt away! What a pity! In this world, ambitious smart elites constantly scheme their own path; and hard work falls on “fools” armed with an idea; serving for the good of the world with no complains, no regret, no fame and no reward; forever pushing forward and never ask for reward. This kind of noble spirit is constantly found in the volunteers of Longevitology.

Now it's time for the re-print of Selangor testimonial book; I realize that “fools” are walking a worthy and never-ending road. All these years, through all your hard work; many patients recovered and many people found hope. Through the re-print of “Love to the world”, more suffering people will found happiness. In the history of Longevitology and the volunteers, this is priceless.

From now on, I want to be a “fool”, to follow the path of the volunteers. Although it's a penniless path; but the future is bright and unlimited.

Finally, I would like to share the follow saying:

To lit the light for others, it also brighten up one’s path;
To dim the light of others, it also darken one’s path.

Wound doesn’t last entire life, it will heal one day;
Scar doesn’t cover entire body, one will understand one day; it only cover small part of my body.

Yours sincerely,
Wei Yu-feng
